CONSUMPTION

The Maine Interscholastic Athletic meet will be held at Brunswick, Saturday.

At Eventide.

Oh, the dreams we dreamed when the day began. As bright and clear as the rising sun, But night draws near and the dreams are done, The sun rises low, its course is run.

For the day is almost over. The dew that was fresh at dawn. The flowers are withered, their fragrance gone And dead—ah, who knows whither?

The songbirds sleep in their tiny nests, Their cheerful voices silent. Rest. Is drawing my worn heart whither?

Are the lashes that touch my cheek, Heavy the lids that droop downward weak, Dumb are the lips, though the heart would speak?

But the soul in its narrow prison Shall burst the fetters that clasp and cramp— The evening dew fall sweet and damp, Perfumed from Heaven's incense lamp, The Evening Star has risen.

CORA M. W. GREENLEAF.

The Tramp.

Jogging along the highway, In the cold and rain, With no one to care for his welfare, The passengers come from the train.

Ragged at knees and elbows, Shoes scarce covering his feet, A beggar's look in their tiny eyes, The people he chances to meet.

He walks along on the sleepers, And the sun is shining bright, He hears the rustling of his way, He hears the rustling of his way,

Something makes him move along slow, The whistle of the train is gone, Down in the seething waters below, Quickly turning about, he hears

The whistle of the train, Oh, God! can he make a light? He hears the rustling of his way, He hears the rustling of his way,

Oh, joy! it turns—a light! He hears the rustling of his way, He hears the rustling of his way,

And swings, burning bright, He hears the rustling of his way, He hears the rustling of his way,

And yes, they see the signal! He hears the rustling of his way, He hears the rustling of his way,

They find the poor old tramp, Burned, unconscious, but not dead! They find the poor old tramp, Burned, unconscious, but not dead!

The ladies tenderly bared his head; They find the poor old tramp, Burned, unconscious, but not dead!

A life of a much better man, And now a good position he fills, No more to be a poor old tramp, Oxfords.

C. F. PATTER.

Edward W. Penley.

Edward W. Penley, now in his thirtieth term as one of the judges, assessors and overseers of the poor for the town of Greenwood, lives on a farm what is known as Richardson Hollow. The location is about three miles south-westward from West Paris, close to the Norway line in the southern part of the town. Mr. Penley's real estate holdings amount to seven hundred or more acres, most of it in his home town. A considerable portion of it is under a high state of cultivation, an incident of which is seen in the fact that a single hay crop from his lands has amounted to as much as a hundred and twenty-five tons, all of which has been stored in good condition and stored in his own barns.

His husbandry is mixed, embracing nearly every form of farming carried on in the State of Maine, but stock raising is the specialty. He believes in the Dur-about thirty-five head and usually has pastures. The work on the place requires five horses. A portion of the pasture lands are devoted to sheep raising, usually keeping a flock of more than half a hundred head of sheep. Of course good numbers of hogs and poultry are kept. In addition to raising stock, Mr. Penley has dealt extensively in nut-and beef on the hoof, and has handled large quantities of wool.

Besides his work on the farm, Mr. Penley has done more than twenty years, cutting much timber from his own land and more from lands of other owners. He has handled mostly pine, spruce, fir, maple, yellow birch, oak and beech; though contracting to some extent in both hard and soft woods for manufacturing purposes.

Edward W. Penley was born in Paris, December 12, 1874, the eldest of the six children of the late James P. and Lodiska A. (Swan) Penley of that town. His brothers live in the town of Paris and his sisters in Lynn, Mass. They are

John Penley, Charles R. Penley, Lu-

Penley and Luella, wife of L. Dyer.

His early days were spent on a farm, but he received such educational training as could be obtained in the district school and in the Institute at South Paris. On leaving the school he took a job as brakeman on the Atlantic & St.

Lawrence R. R., and spent a couple of years on the run between Portland and December 20, 1898, he married Abbie, daughter of William and Hannah (Barrows) Richardson of Greenwood, and settled down to farming in the same town where his wife was born and reared. Starting with no property they have steadily worked their way out from the rugged soil of Oxford County not only a livelihood but accumulated considerable property. They have had thirteen children of whom nine are living: Angie, married Ernest H. Herrick of Greenwood; Walter E. is on the farm with his parents; Lester is a recently taken a course at a Massachusetts business college; Frederick R.

Alfred, Joseph L., Leona B. and home. The youngest were born in 1898.

Mr. Penley's success has been due to good judgment coupled with plenty of hard work. His townsmen have recognized his ability and have (as has been told) given him a long service as administering town affairs. He is in his second term of two years as one of the trustees of the Oxford County Agricultural Society. An ardent Republican, he has never sought political office but once, and then was elected to the legislature of 1897 in which he served with credit to himself and constituents.

Soberly, he is a Granger having belonged in the Grange for a long time, and has membership in the I. O. E. and Rebekah Lodges at West Paris.

At this time Mr. Penley is a candidate for County Commissioner to succeed

Hon. John M. Philbrook of Bethel whose term of six years will expire on December 31st, 1902. It is commonly understood that the office will go to some man who is conversant to the line of the well for the county's business to have it

Grand Trunk R. R., and it would seem so, Mr. Bartlett of Stoneham coming from the western section of the county and Mr. Taylor of Mexico from the present general view when any of the county officers went to the town of Greenwood, and Mr. Penley's location and inherent fitness for the position make him a strong candidate.

The Maine Interscholastic Athletic meet will be held at Brunswick, Saturday.

Camp Life by a Soldier.

How the Camp has been Beautified.—Columbia Barracks, Cuba, Apr. 22, '01.

The camp has changed wonderfully in the last year. The line of barracks, 29 in number, are surrounded by wide macadamized roads and walkways shaded by superb royal palms. Here and there these walks turn in and out over to the officers' line, where twelve beautiful

Queen Anne cottages have been erected and are occupied by our superiors. Rustic bridges dot the landscape and the lawns and parade grounds are something beautiful, and every one in the post is proud of them.

Three elegant band stands grace one of the parade grounds, and three times a week (evenings), the 7th band gives one of its concerts.

CAUTION.

Do not let the busy season of planting prevent putting in a Separator. The cows will give more milk on the fresh feed, and in the rush of business there is more danger of neglect and consequent loss by the old way. With the Separator you have the satisfaction of knowing that you are doing clean work—and the warm skimmed milk is more valuable and convenient to feed to all kinds of stock.

The capacity of the V. S. Separator has lately been increased, so that it is still ahead of all competitors in quantity as well as quality of its work. I am agent for them in Norway, Waterford, Albany, Stoneham, Sweden and Bridgton. Send for catalogue and price list.

The Wool Carding Mill will run as usual this summer. I shall pay cash for fleeces wool.

Plenty of buttermilk at Waterford Creamery, 10 per gallon.

TO believe in coffee is the second step; you must first believe in the firm that prepares it. Chase & Sanborn prepare "Seal Brand" Coffee. The berries are the finest grown. It costs twice as much to secure them, three times as much to assort them. Really you get twice the strength and three times the aroma. It costs only a few cents to try it. You know who makes it. You know who sells it. You know it is world-famous. Somehow, the rest seems easy. Order a trial pound.

NORWAY AND VICINITY

Isaac Hagar of West Milan, N. H., was in Norway, Monday.

Mrs. Harry L. Haynes of Bethel visited his folks here, over Sunday.

Newton Richardson and wife of Bethel spent Sunday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. F. Stans.

Herman C. Paragard of Freeport visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chert L. Paragard, last week.

William Martin of Greenwood was in town and made a pleasant call on the ADVERTISER, Saturday.

H. Denison Cole has the daily weather map and schedule come from the U. S. weather office in Portland and displays it in front of his store at mail time, each afternoon.

Theodore L. Webb was confined to the house at his home in Berlin, N. H., during the first half of this month, by rheumatism. He was sick during most of the last winter.

Mrs. Otis N. Jones and daughter Mary from Boston came on last Friday, for a short visit to the son and brother, William F. Jones, esq., before going on their European trip for the summer.

E. Price Webber, the popular showman, had his scenery, costumes, etc., entirely destroyed by fire at Magog, P. Q., last week. This is the third time he has suffered in this way, and it is bad news to many Norway people.

Lemuel Gurney of Hebron was in Norway, Friday afternoon, with some of the best and biggest Roxbury rascals of the season. The ADVERTISER knows whereof it speaks, for they were generously remembered. Mr. Gurney is one of the best orchardists in Oxford county, and our fair without a display of his fruit would seem like something left out.

The United States Topographical and Geological Surveys are represented in recent contributions to Norway Public Library of a dozen volumes with accompanying atlases. Among these books is one on the geology of Maine, and another on the history of United States boundaries in which is given a long account of the Northeastern boundary question which caused the bloodless Madawaska War, and nearly precipitated a third conflict between us and the mother country.

No. Brother Shorey of the Bridgton News, Hon. Alfred S. Kimball is not Grand Master of Maine Masonic Grand Lodge. He is a good deal bigger than more a Grand Lodge officer. He is Grand Master of the Freemasons of Maine and his authority is directly over all his brethren in the State without any midway halting place in the Grand Lodge. The Grand Lodge is a body of only a few hundred men, and the Freemasons of whom Mr. Kimball is Grand Master number more than twenty thousand.

Hon. Benjamin F. Chadbourne of Biddeford, member of the State Board of Railroad Commissioners, and Leroy F. Hight, esq., of Portland, associate counsel for the Grand Trunk Ry., were in town, Friday, to look at the grade crossing on the way known as Willey street which the town has laid out across Norway Branch Ry. The location will be formally approved by the Railroad Commissioners. While here "Jolly Big Ben" improved the opportunity for an official inspection of Norway and Paris Street Railway.

Dr. Frank A. Hayden had a birthday, last Friday, and celebrated it by entertaining some forty young folks in the evening at the Hayden Villa by Lake Pennesseewassee. The trip was made by J. H. Porter's steamboat Pennesseewassee. A salad and pastry supper was served at which the central piece was a surprise to the doctor. It was a great and gorgeous cake bearing the cheering words "Little Frankie." After supper Mellie Dunham furnished music for a merry cotillion dance, and with boating the time passed pleasantly until the hour for returning to their homes. The doctor received some nice presents.

A recent issue of the Hyde Park Gazette had the following in regard to one of our former fellow townsman: "Old friends of Dr. J. C. Gallison of Franklin, Mass., are congratulating him on his recovery from a severe illness. Dr. Gallison was particularly pleased to receive a delightful letter from Lieut. Governor Bates. The doctor is an ex-member of the legislature, and was deservedly popular in the House. His poetic contributions on unpopular bills and on festive occasions are recalled with the keenest relish by those who served with him in the general court. There is good timber in the genial M. D. for senatorial honors."

Norway Municipal Court.
Saturday, a trial was had in the case of State vs. Charles A. Abbott of Fryburg, charged with persistently vexing, harassing, persecuting and abusing Edward F. Hurd and family. Abbott and his wife are neighbors who do not live in perfect peace and harmony. According to the testimony, Abbott has taken special pains to insult Hurd and members of his family with profane and obscene language at every opportunity. M. L. Kimball, esq., conducted the prosecution and S. W. Rife the defense. Abbott was fined $5 and costs from which he appealed.

Letter to John M. Cummings.

Dear Sir: Which of these two, is the better argument?
Painters condemn readymade paints; lead and oil is your point.
Or this?
Devoe lead and zinc lasts twice as long; and the dealer, who sells it, backed by the maker of it, established 146 years, guarantees it. Devoe is your point.
Yours truly,

SOUTH CONWAY, H. N.
Chester A. Garland is going to Jackson, this week, to work for the summer. Quite a number from this place went to North Conway to the Grange meeting on Friday evening, May 10.

Mrs. Walter Zehle and daughter of East Conway visited her daughter, Lillian Osgood, the school teacher.

Mrs. Geo Moore and two children of Berlin, N. H., were the guests of her father, W. F. Eaton, and her sister, Mrs. T. Parks.

William H. Warren.

Mr. Warren died at his home in Norway village, Friday morning, May 17, after a long and severe sickness. His age was 71 years.

He was a native of the town of Buxton in York County, and as a young man located at Cornish village, where he was in the teaming business, driving between that place and Portland. When the Portland and Ogdensburg R. R. was built, he went into the clothing business at Cornish, and later left that to run a hotel in the same village.

In 1881 he came to Norway and took the Beal's Hotel which he managed for a couple of years, and then went into the trucking business. Disposing of that, he went back to the clothing business, he was on a farm in Waterford several years, returning to Norway, eight years ago, and opening a boarding house on Oak avenue. That house was burned in the great fire of 1894, and he then leased the large John M. Cummings boarding-house and ran it for several years. After a short period of retirement he moved to Pejepscot and ran a boarding house for the paper company nearly two years, returning to Norway, last fall, since which time his health had not permitted any work.

Mr. Warren was also interested in horses, owned and kept several valuable stallions, and was always ready to labor for the improvement of the horses raised or kept in the community.

He married Bethiah Wadsworth of Hiram, who survives with two daughters and one son, Mrs. George A. Brooks of the B. F. Spinnery & Co. shoe factory at Norway, and Ambrose B. Warren, teacher in the high school at Attleboro, Mass.

The funeral was held at Cornish, Saturday afternoon, in the home of his only surviving brother, Richard Warren, Rev. Caroline E. Angell of Norway officiated. It was for Mrs. Warren an occasion of sorrow such as comes to few, for at the same time there lay dead in Cornish village, a brother of hers and the wife of another brother.

HARRISON.

H. A. Libby's "Barber house," which has been empty for some time, is now occupied, Frank Foster having moved into it.

The Lewis school in this town which was suspended, last year, on account of lack of scholars is in session with thirteen pupils.

Attempted Burglary.

Between 12 and 1 o'clock, last Friday morning, people living near the post-office at Harrison village were awakened by unusual noises. Investigation showed that somebody had broken into the post-office and drilled the safe. Powder had not been used, so the contents of the safe were all right.

The burglars fled toward the east, and a good chase was made after them, but they escaped.

H. C. Packard is making alterations and improvements in his buildings, putting in new windows, building a piazza on the easterly side of his home, removing his back fence, etc.

M. T. Merrow, who had his leg broken and otherwise injured by being thrown from his sulky at Casco Fair, is still far from being a well man. He is able to walk but very little, and the strangest thing about it is that the leg which was not injured is the one which troubles him the most.

The water in Long lake has been unusually high, this spring, and it is reported that changes in the dam at Songo Lock will cause the water to be held back so that it will fall very slowly. The water in the lake was remarkably high during all of last summer, although the season was a very dry one.

Another new rural free delivery route to run from the Harrison post-office is talked of. It is proposed to run through the Bolster's Mills post-office, and some in the immediate vicinity are making a vigorous protest against this.

Mr. C. Grafton and wife have moved to Bridgton for the summer. Their daughter has been there for some time. His two sons, Clarence and Will are to stay on the farm. They expect to build and repair the house this season.

Minnie Plummer of South Paris, who was considered by music critics a fine contralto singer has developed into an amateur soprano with a wonderful dramatic soprano. She has received a fine offer from Manager Great to go to Grand Opera, but she decided to confine herself to concert singing at present. Her stage name is Mademoiselle Solarette and she is now living in Paris.

The frontispiece of the May number of the New England Magazine is a portrait of James G. Blaine. It is accompanied by an article upon "The Presidential Campaign of 1884 in Mr. Blaine's Home City," written by Rev. Edward G. Mason. In 1884, Mr. Mason was a student in one of the schools of Augusta, an interested observer of that most exciting of presidential campaigns, at what was perhaps its most important and strategic point.

Jacob A. Riis' autobiography, published under the significant title, "The Making of an American," is, to look, continues to attract attention and forms one of the most popular serial features ever published in that periodical. The installment contained in the May Magazine number dwells in a somewhat humorous way on many incidents and adventures which befell the young Danish immigrant in his attempt to gain a foothold in American life.

The Pan-American Exposition.

Elliot Square and Down Town.—The Flowers and the Midway.—Statue of Washington.

Arriving in Buffalo, boarded a Belt Line train for up town. That railroad is fifteen miles long and goes around the city limits. I had made the mistake of taking a room up town, quite near the exposition grounds. The railroad is so much through the city that one cannot get away from the smoke nuisance while there. The cost of meals is to much more up town and in vicinity of the grounds that it is economy to get room down town, four to six miles away, get meals at some of the really good restaurants, and use the street cars for going back and forth. Still, I had an excellent room and managed pretty well for board.

The landmark of Buffalo is the great ten-story office building known as Elliot Square, occupying the whole block between Main, Washington, South Division and Sweet streets, approximately 17 rods on a side, and the city may fairly be said to radiate from that point. The building is one of the sights of the place and if you visit Buffalo you want to go through it. The exposition company's headquarters are in the second, sixth and eighth stories.

Going into the Exposition grounds at the main entrance on Lincoln parkway, one finds on the right a nice wooded section of the park leased by the city to the exposition. At the left is the unfinished Albright art gallery which will be a permanent building. In front is the bridge across Scatagunda creek, flowing from the east to Lake Erie on the west. To pronounce the second syllable jack and give the other three as little mention as possible. On the grounds the creek spreads out into two bays, one for boating privileges may be enjoyed. By artificial grottoes, underground passages and by canals, the gondolas may travel to nearly every corner of the Exposition.

The exhibit of the United States life saving service is beside the north pond while the expanse south of the bridge contains an artificial island and electric fountains. It is about the lawns in this south end of the grounds where tents of different States are pitched.

Crossing the bridge with its great plaster-of-paris lions, paths lead to right or left, while the triumphal way stretches past the statue of George Washington riding a horse to a great open space called the Esplanade. The Esplanade is accommodating 250,000 people. Among its fixtures are two bandstands.

Instead turn to the left and wander respondent with the flower gardens, which I saw pansies. The Woman's building and the New York State building are in the midst of the flowers.

Beyond them commences the Midway. The pavilions of the Indians are the first thing found. A wing up one comes to the West Amherst gate next the hospital and service buildings. Crossing The Mall, the big cross street of the grounds, and continuing through the Midway, you will arrive at the Plaza, a large open space smaller than The Esplanade. Along the Midway are Dreamland, The Johnstown Flood, Boston's big animal show, Mexican village, Egyptian village, Philippine village, Thompson's Aero-Cycle and giant teeter-board with revolving ends, the baby incubators, Hawaiian village, little Venice, scenic railway and lots of other attractive coast dimes and quarters from your pockets and devote the glut in silver market. Despite the fact that may be said, the Midway draws the crowds.

At the upper end of the grounds is the railroad exhibit, in which the most interesting things were the big locomotives, some with drive wheels 6 1/2 feet in diameter, others with eight drive wheels, etc.

At this point I had gone half way around the outer circuit inside the fence.

A Very Remarkable Remedy.
"I am with a good deal of pleasure and satisfaction that I recommend Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," says Druggist A. W. Stettelle, of Hartford, Conn. "A lady customer, seeing the remedy exposed for sale, really believe that medicine saved my life, the past summer, while at the shore, and she became so enthusiastic over its merits that I at once made up my mind to recommend it in the future. Recently a gentleman came into my store so overcome with colic pains that he sank at once to the floor. I gave him a dose of this remedy which helped him. I repeated the dose and in fifteen minutes he felt as well as ever." Sold by Noyes Drug Store, Norway; F. A. Shurtless & Co., South Paris, Me.

TORE,

Strawberries for Home Use.

The strawberry is the choice of the great majority above all other small fruits, and I often wonder that every one having land for a garden does not cultivate a bed of them sufficient to supply himself with his own table. But looking over the ways of farmers, I note there are not 10 per cent. that will take care of a garden properly. They work in it only when they have nothing else to do, seem to think such work is lost time, and do it generally to please the women in the house. Still they enjoy the products of the garden when placed on the table at their meals. The care of fowls comes in the same category; they think fowls ought to take care of themselves, and when they produce will be clear gain. Those that have given thought to the subject of production realize that everything is produced by effort; we get nothing honestly without it, and our receipts, as a rule, are according to the effort made. We must do our part with nature to get a return.

The cultivation of a strawberry-bed for family use is not expensive in time compared with results. A patch of land 50 feet long and 18 feet wide gives ample supply, if properly cared for; this will give six rows equal to 300 feet in length. Green sward is not good for starting a bed. It had better be planted with corn or some crop that requires cultivation to kill out the grass; then, after the crop is taken off, the ground should be generously covered with stable or other well-rotted manure. It pays to make it rich, as the crop will respond to the extra manure. Then plow it in, not too deep; if it was deep-plowed for the first crop, harrow it well and get it well pulverized. Let it lie for a time; then plow and drag it again before winter. Early in the spring, plow lightly and harrow it to a smooth surface. But if the ground had not been prepared in the fall and a bed is to be started, this year, do the best possible now and then start one right for next year.

To get the rows straight, mark them out by dragging a chain by hand to make a mark; the rows should be 3 feet apart. Get good plants with good roots, and do not set any old plants that sometimes get mixed in. Set the plants 16 inches apart; make a hole with the garden trowel and put in a tablespoonful of bone meal, mix it with a little earth; dip the roots in water, spread them out and fill up the hole with earth, pressing it around the plant firmly, and the job is done.

It is important that the weeds be kept down; you cannot raise strawberries with a strong growth of weeds to advantage; and it is cheaper to cut up the weeds when they first show, than to let them grow up strong and have to pull them up; besides, by stirring the ground often it makes a good mulching and keeps the soil moist.

It is better to cover the plants lightly after the ground begins to freeze. A small spruce or hemlock branch dropped over each hill is the best cover. If you cannot get either, use straw horse manure, but not too much, or it will smother the plants. Uncover as soon as the general frosts are over in the spring, and keep the weeds down till plants begin to blossom; then do not disturb them except between the rows, and with a cultivator; then cover space between the rows with straw. When the berries are set and fully half grown, place excelsior around the hills to keep the stems of berries from falling over into the dirt, and the fruit will ripen and color all over. If you have not the excelsior, put around a little straw. This is not absolutely necessary, but it will keep the fruit clean and more evenly ripened. This may seem a great amount of work, but is not so great as one would expect from the minute directions.

After the berries are gathered, the runners will be well started. Then look after the weeds. Take the strongest runners and set one each side of the row half way between; these should be set the same distance apart as the main hills. Put in bonedust with each setting. These plants will bear fruit the next season. When the new plant is well started, cut the vine connecting it with the old plant, and leave the new one to its own resources. At time of setting cut off all other runners, and again cut all runners in October to go into the winter. The leaves from the evergreens will shed off, and they are excellent to help fertilize; pines may be used.

I think I got the finest flavored berries on gravelly loam. Strawberries do best on moderately moist ground, as they require water. If on very dry soil, they should be irrigated. I do not remember ever putting out a bed that I did not set Wilsons, sometimes one-fourth. They are strong plants and prolific, and furnish pollen for other varieties. With the fertilizing matter from the fruit large enough to sell well with the others. Although somewhat more acid, the flavor is far ahead of any variety I ever tried. The fruit is solid, bears transportation well, and can be left on the stem till fully ripe, while others of the larger kinds will have a pithy meat inside that is insipid. Sugar will offset the acid. I firmly believe it is the best plant to put out the Wilsons with the large varieties.

A word about picking for market. Never top the basket with large ones; put many large berries at the bottom as at the top, and you will keep your customer for the next lot. The top berries should have the stems turned down, to show the berries to good advantage. There is no more valuable crop than the strawberry, or surer seller, particularly in the North, where they come in after the southern berries are gone. Berries raised in the older climates are of better flavor than southern berries, like two or three shillings higher in the English markets than those grown in the United States.—[Country Gentleman.]

A Sprained Ankle Quickly Cured.
"At one time I suffered from a severe sprain of the ankle," says Geo. E. Cary, editor of the Guide, Washington, Va. "After using several well recommended medicines without success, I tried Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and am pleased to say that relief came as soon as I began its use and a complete cure speedily followed. This remedy has also been used in my family for years."

Gov. Pingree and His Bath-tub.

How Pingree, When Governor of Michigan, Adhered to the Doctor's Advice That He Take a Cold-water Bath Every Morning.

However it may be enjoyed in Michigan the Parting Shot of Gov. Pingree to the Michigan Legislature contains much of what Solon Chase would term "good easy" reading. He talks very plainly. We have before us the message in full in the State of Michigan Senate Journal, Jan. 9, 1901.

The following little thrust at the state capitol's hotel accommodations—considering that it is an extract from a state paper by the chief executive to the state legislature—is to say the least, unique and vigorous. We quote:

In regard to the criticism of the people and the press respecting my actions, I enjoy it. I court it. All I ask is that the criticism be honest. I cannot learn anything from a man unless he criticizes me and I shall always respect the man who criticizes me honestly, and I shall claim the same privilege regardless of contempt of any court.

I have been criticised a great deal for not taking up my abode here in Lansing and agreeing to exile myself and family out here so that Ingham county would know that every penny spent by myself and family would be spent in the capital of this great State.

Several doctors had advised me to take a cold water plunge in the morning in order that I might be able to get to work in the forenoon and be able to put in from ten to eighteen hours each day on the State's business. I used to have a folding bed in my office here in Lansing, but not having access to any water in the capital I went to the Downey House and they always very kindly gave me one of their rooms that had a bath in connection.

They knew that I was coming here and they knew that I always had to have a room with a bath, but on the occasion of my present visit to the capital they apologized saying that they could not give me one of the rooms having a bath—they had three such rooms—this is in the great city of Lansing, the capital of Michigan. They said they had to give the first one to our "boss" Senator McMillan. His dear son had to have the next, and the Senators brother expected to come to Lansing and he could not stay over night unless he could have a room with a bath. That exhausted the supply.

I then went over to the ancient hostelry called the Hudson House, and by the way, taking everything into consideration, the old house is the best hotel in town and their prices are in keeping with their service. They very kindly gave me a room on the first floor. This room had a bath room attached. The bath tub I am sure was put in long before the capital was built in Lansing. It had sprung a leak many years ago and they had taken out the pipes and it was impossible to get any water in that way. I asked if they had any help who would fill a washtub every morning with nice clean cold water. They said "certainly." Next morning they knocked on the door and when I said come in, they brought in an old washtub that had been used for years. It was a nasty old tub and with it was a nasty old slop pail.

These were placed in the room. I went out and found a man who had washtubs for sale and I bought a tub from him and also a pail and I have presented them with my compliments to the antique hotel with the request that they keep them for me to use, so that I may be able to take my customary plunge in the morning, in the future speak of this as an indignity. I have magnified things a bit. I want to let the people of the State know why I did not move myself and family out here and remain in the capital of Michigan. The claim is made that I have not done my duty because I have not made my residence here.

I hope the sober thinking people will understand that it was not intentional on my part to rob them of my presence, but the state of my health demanded accommodations which the town did not and does not afford and I remained where I could secure these comforts. I tried to do my duty as I saw it. I am stronger now than I have been in months past and I do not think the interests of the State have suffered through any fault of mine.

The treatment which the Chief Executive of this State has received at the hands of the people of Lansing for the last four years, in my opinion, shows they are not entitled to the gubernatorial residence.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages. That disease is Catarrh. Catarrh is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being constitutional, it requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, it acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system; thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the system strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer one Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Albion Brown.

Albion Brown was born in Buckfield, Nov. 18, 1831, and died after a lingering illness at the residence of his son, Leslie D. Brown, in Berlin, N. H., Sunday, May 12.

When quite young, he went to Harmony, and lived there until the war broke out, when he enlisted and for a few years served his country as a soldier. During those awful years he participated in no less than twenty eight engagements. He was shot five times and wore the honorable scars of a valiant soldier upon his body. He returned from the war to pursue for many years the vocations of peace. His wounds were such as to prevent him from enjoying music of any kind. The sound of singing or of a musical instrument caused his head to surge, and made it impossible for him to attend church services, Memorial Day services, and even music in the home. This was a great affliction.

Shortly after the war, he moved to Milan, N. H., and thence to Berlin. His wife died in 1884. He leaves three sons: Leslie D., Roscoe and Sumner; and one daughter, Ella. Mrs. Eugene Bean of Berlin, and two brothers in Harmony, Mr. Brown was a kindly disposed, polite, gentleman. He was somewhat retiring, and unwilling to cause any one a needless pain. During the last months of his life he was afflicted with dropsy which slowly but surely took its toll of him. He was tenderly cared for by his children to whom he was much endeared. He leaves many ardent friends. Funeral services were conducted at the home of Leslie Brown at 1 p. m., Monday, May 13, by Rev. William W. Wood. Selections appropriate were sung by a choir consisting of E. L. Jewell, C. W. Mackay, Minnie Day and Nellie Bean. The funeral was under the direction of Walters & Whitney. The remains were taken to Harmony and placed with other members of the family in the old home cemetery.

Catarrh.

Called an American disease, is cured by an American medicine, originated and prepared in the most cathartic of American countries. This medicine is known as Catarrh. It cures radically and permanently, in that it removes the cause, cleansing the blood of scrofulous and all other impurities. It overcomes all the effects of catarrh, too, and builds up the whole system.

The twentieth great international convention of the Young People's Societies of Christian Endeavor throughout the world will be held at Cincinnati, O., July 6-10.

A Worthy Successor.

"Something New Under The Sun."

All Doctors have tried to cure CATARRH by the use of powders, acid gases, inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their practice is the cause of the mucous membranes causing them to crack open and bleed. The powerful acids used in the inhalers have entirely eaten away the same membranes that their makers have aimed to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the diseased part. A man of long experience, who has for many years made a close study and specialty of the treatment of CATARRH, has at last perfected a treatment which when faithfully used, not only relieves the sufferer, but cures the disease. CATARRH by removing the cause, stopping the discharges, and curing all inflammation. It is the only remedy known to science that actually reaches the afflicted parts. This wonderful remedy is known as "SNUFFLES" the GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE and is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar, each package containing internal and external medicine sufficient for a full month's treatment and everything necessary to its perfect use.

"SNUFFLES" is the only perfect CATARRH CURE ever made and is now recognized as the only safe and positive cure for that annoying and disgusting disease. It cures all inflammation quickly and permanently and is also wonderfully quick to relieve HAY FEVER or COLD in the HEAD.

CATARRH when neglected often leads to CONSUMPTION. "SNUFFLES" will save you if you use it at once. It is no ordinary remedy, but a complete treatment which is positively guaranteed to cure CATARRH in any form or stage if accompanied by the directions which accompany each package. Don't delay but send for it at once, and write full particulars as to your condition, and you will receive special advice from the discoverer of this wonderful remedy regarding your case with the cost to you beyond the regular price of "SNUFFLES" the "GUARANTEED CATARRH CURE."

WHY MRS. PINKHAM

Is Able to Help Sick Women When Doctors Fail.

How gladly would men fly to woman's aid did they but understand a woman's feelings, trials, sensibilities, and peculiar organic disturbances. Those things are known only to women, and the aid a man would give is not at his command.

To treat a case properly it is necessary to know all about it, and full information, many times, cannot be given by a woman to her family physician.

Mrs. G. H. CHAPPELL.

She cannot bring herself to tell everything, and the physician is at a constant disadvantage. This is why, for the past twenty-five years, thousands of women have been confiding their troubles to Mrs. Pinkham, and whose advice has brought happiness and health to countless women in the United States.

Mrs. Chappell, of Grant Park, Ill., whose portrait we publish, advises all suffering women to seek Mrs. Pinkham's advice and use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as they cured her of inflammation of the ovaries and womb; she, therefore, speaks from knowledge, and her experience ought to give others confidence. Mrs. Pinkham's address is Lynn, Mass., and her advice is absolutely free.
